In Text Citiations

International trade is the exchange of goods and services between countries. It is a key driver of economic growth and prosperity (Bhattacharya & Bhattacharya, 2016; Gökalp & Akçay, 2022, p.51).

International trade allows countries to specialize in the production of goods and services that they are relatively good at producing (Krugman & Obstfeld, 2015). This specialization leads to increased efficiency and productivity, which in turn leads to lower prices and higher living standards (Feenstra, 2016, p.124).

International trade also helps to promote innovation (Branstetter et al., 2015). When countries trade with each other, they are exposed to new technologies and ideas. This can lead to new products and services being developed, which can further boost economic growth (Gopinath, 2018, pp.12-15). Finally, international trade helps to promote peace and understanding between countries (Rose, 2004). When countries are economically interdependent, they have a greater incentive to cooperate and resolve their differences peacefully (Frankel, 1997). In conclusion, international trade is a vital part of the global economy. It offers a number of benefits, including economic growth, prosperity, innovation, and peace.
